Seminar held in Hamburg on September 20, 2008 – as well as further topics relating to both historical and present-day events

(Herwig Duschek:) This is what Rudolf Steiner meant when he spoke of that “power hidden deep within German culture”, something which was still in the process of growing and which would reach fruition in the future. He was referring to anthroposophy, the greatest phenomenon ever to emerge from within German culture. Rudolf Steiner sowed the seeds of anthroposophy and, although delicate plants have sprung up here and there, many seeds have yet to germinate – but they are already in the soil! We have eurythmy; we have the Waldorf Schools and a great many other cultural impulses.

What we should also have had, however, is a completely new social organism, the Threefold Social Order, which should have become reality. This social organism was destined to provide anthroposophical art and culture with the necessary foundation on which to evolve further, enabling them to shape our human civilisation.

Our present-day antisocial organism has nothing whatsoever to do with the true social organism because the individual human being no longer figures prominently in society today. Instead he has become “replaceable”, “dispensable” – all that matters is money.

It was Rudolf Steiner’s intention that the human being and his spiritual nature be taken seriously – right down to each and every single deed and action. That was what Rudolf Steiner wanted.

When the individual is no longer respected, people find themselves being despised, mobbed, tormented and abused in all kinds of ways – there can, of course, be no social coexistence under such conditions.

Society is increasingly falling apart; we can see this happening all around us. More and more families are breaking up, our social structures are disintegrating, children are becoming more and more difficult in their behaviour etc. – what else can we possibly expect!

We no longer trust our own neighbours. Every one of us is struggling to keep his or her head above water – that is the state of society today.

And here we have Rudolf Steiner talking about something “hidden” which is still in the process of developing. In April 1919 – with reference to the Threefold Social Order – he spoke the following words at the end of his “Appeal to the German Nation and the Civilised World”:

“[...] either one must deign to submit one’s thinking to the demands of reality, or nothing will have been learned from the catastrophe (i.e. the First World War. H.D.), and this self-inflicted misery will be endlessly perpetuated and intensified.”

You will find yourselves making the same mistake over and over again until you actually realise that you have made a mistake. And a person can even become ill as the result of making a mistake. If he or she does not recognise the connection involved, the mistake will continue to be made and the person will become more and more ill. This is part of human nature, part of our human condition.

As a result of Rudolf Steiner not having been taken seriously, the very opposite ("counter image") of the "Threefold Social Order", i.e. the most centralistic world government of all times, will have been put in place by around the year 2013 ...

... The New World Order will be fully established with the statutory introduction of the 666-microchip (RFID-chip = Radio Frequency Identity) ...

Even today, we are confronted with all kinds of surveillance wherever we go. But perhaps the ultimate instrument will no longer watch us from the outside: it will be inside us and reveal not only our identity but also everything we do and where we go.

The surveillance technology of the future can be viewed at the Baja Beach Club in Rotterdam. This is no ordinary club. Some of its guests are special VIPs who differ from the others. They do not have to prove their identity at the entrance nor do they require money at the bar. To be admitted, all they have to do is hold out their arm in front of a scanner.

Film director Aaron Russo was once a friend of the "Elite" Member Nick Rockefeller. Their friendship came to an end after Russo found out that the aim of the "Elite" is to equip every human being with an RFID-microchip (the sign of the beast 666) ...
